findings store at 314 South Broad Street, Trenton, might be in a position to give some information. I talked with him but he claims that he did not know her at all.

As suggested by you, I again saw former Captain of Detectives Clancey and told him what Pilger had stated in reference to Mrs. Easton's connection with the Marshall case. Clancey said he was under the impression that she had come to the office herself with the information. However, Pilger was working under his directions but could have sought information from Mrs. Easton without it being known to him and that it possibly was as Pilger had stated and Mrs. Easton had come to the office to give the information which Pilger had asked her to obtain. I asked Clancey if the information was of any value and he replied that it could not have been as nothing was accomplished in the case.

As suggested by Mr. Watson, I called upon Mr. Scott M. Fell of the Insurance firm of Fell & Moon, Broad Street Bank Building, Trenton. Mr. Fell did not have any information of value but as he was personally acquainted with Chief of Police William P. Walter, he was kind enough to take me over and introduce me to him and later he accompanied me to the Second Precinct Station.

Chief Walter turned over to Mr. Fell and myself the Police Blotters and Detective Bureau Blotters for the period around the time of the Marshall case. We examined them very carefully but found no mention at all of Mrs. Easton's name in connection therewith.

So as you might have the information in regard to the Marshall case, I made a copy of the blotter entry, which is as follows:

"Dec. 3, 1912 at 5:55 P.M., I received a telephone for the ambulance from a man who gave the name of
